

Exciting times at Stoneleigh for Colourful Coffins

Colourful Coffins: Hall 2 Stand C6B

Colourful Coffins will be showcasing its latest range of coffin and casket designs at The National Funeral Exhibition at Stoneleigh and launching its brand new colour brochure for the funeral trade.

Among the designs on display for the first time will be a selection of upright ashes caskets, including a police box, a post box and a juke box, plus a series of new designs for adult coffins.

The company will also be exhibiting its highly popular cardboard coffins, the only ones on the market made out of 100% recycled cardboard and covered in cotton material.

The brochure, which will also be sent out directly to funeral directors, highlights the increasing interest in bespoke picture coffins – some 95% of the company's orders are personalised – and underlines its commitment to personal service and top quality products.

Mary, who will be with her team on Stand C6B in Hall 2 throughout the event, said: "Stoneleigh is always a great opportunity to spend time talking with all our colleagues in the funeral trade and to demonstrate the high quality and craftsmanship which goes into our picture coffins.

"We've always prided ourselves on being the market leaders in custom design and we're constantly looking for new ways to innovate and provide families with an even better choice. As well as our new ashes casket range, we'll be unveiling exciting new designs for the adult market and inviting funeral directors to tell us what they think of them."

All the brand new adult coffins on the stand can be purchased or reserved, on a first come, first served basis.

During the show, the company will also be presented with a certificate to mark its award as the first Corporate Member of the Society of Bereavement Practitioners. Society Director, the Rev George Callander, will be making the presentation on Saturday and, at the same time, both Mary and Kevin Tomes will receive Fellowships of the Society in recognition of their "wonderful" work within the bereavement industry.
