

Why Faye really digs her new job

There's a new face on the team at Colourful Coffins.

Faye Dunning recently joined as office administrator and receptionist and has been kept on her toes right from the start as the company enjoyed a record turnover during January.

Responsible for taking orders, dealing with enquiries and generally helping managing director Mary Tomes and her team, Faye has even recently been 'roped in' to help with tree planting in the Colourful Coffins memorial garden.

Each time a Colourful Coffin is buried, a native woodland tree is planted at the six acre plot, and Faye and the team took advantage of an early Spring day to don their wellies and catch up after with their planting after the cold weather.

Although a newcomer to the funeral industry, Faye is already getting to know many of the firm's 'regular' funeral directors by phone and is looking forward to finding out more about the business as she settles in to the role.

A mum of twin 10-year-old boys, she recently returned to the Oxford area after a year in Northern Ireland, where she worked in a busy Accident & Emergency department of a major hospital.
